

MEN OF 106TH
LIKE ATTERBURY

Regimental Newspaper Reveals Survey of Opinions on New Home.

Camp Atterbury, April 13 (Special)—“The Inquiring Reporter” of “The Fighter,” regimental newspaper of the 106th Division, last week queried the men on their impressions of Camp Atterbury. The replies were overwhelmingly in favor of this Hoosier post.

“Atterbury is a fine camp,” thought Pvt. Irving Seblasky of Company F. “It is scenic and well-planned. Nearby towns are within easy reach.”

Staff Sgt. Arthur Weigart, A-T company, stated: “As much as I have seen of Camp Atterbury is very nice. The prompt telephone service, the post exchanges, the modern service clubs and the reliable bus service surpasses any I have seen in other Army camps.”

Sgt. Sam T. Cooke, Headquarters company, 1st Battalion, said: “This is my first trip north. Camp Atterbury is a little cold, but its facilities and barracks are the best I have seen yet.”

Staff Sgt. Eugene Kelch, Company I, replied: “First of all, Camp Atterbury is near home. Secondly, it has excellent recreation and training accommodations. It is the best camp I have seen yet.”

Pfc. Stephen Springer, Company F, remarked: “I like Atterbury for its service clubs, PX’s, theaters, telephone service and barracks. The food even seems better here.”

Pvt. Gino Sammaratino, Company D, observed: “I haven’t seen much of the camp yet, but what I have, I like better than what I have seen any other place.”

1944/04/13 Men of 106th Like Atterbury "Inquiring Reporter"

Clipped By:

jimdwest

Thu, May 4, 2017